Hearing in Progress in New Jersey Relative to the Appointment of a Receiver Brings Out Facts.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 13 .- Attorney General McCarter to-day resumed his argument at the hearing before Vice Chancellor Fitney to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Universal Tobacco Company. He took up the charges of William H. Butler against Frank Til- to end" and by discovering the "Fitzgerald ford and Henry B. Wilson as to the alleged purchase of the Henry Clay & Bock Company, while they were agents for the Universal Company. He produced affidavits to show how Tilford and Wilson, while directors of the Universal Company, bought the Havana Commonwealth Company, the Henry Clay & Bock Company and the Weissinger Company, as component parts of a new concern, and then turned it over to the American Tobacco Company, clearing $500,000 on the deal, and throwing the plant into the "trust."

A new affidavit, made by William H. Butler, was introduced, setting forth that after the alleged treachery of Tilford and Wilson the Havana Tobacco Company, a new concern, was incorporated in New Jersey with an authorized capital of $60,000,000, and that subsequent to this the Hayana Commonwealth Company, the Weissinger Company and the Cuban Sugar Company combined with the Havana Tobacco Company, stock and bonds being taken in exchange for the individual assets of the subsidiary

It is alleged that Tilford and Wilson secured $30,000,000 for the Havana Tobacco Company's securities on all the property. The vice chancellor remarked about the manner in which business is done in finanthe Butler voting trust vold, nor would he sign a temporary stay. Attorney General McCarter had not concluded his argument when the hearing was adjourned until Saturday next.

BARON WANTS HIS MONEY.

Sues for Commissions for Selling Shipping Trust Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 .- Baron Robert Oppenheim, of Paris, has begun suit in the Supreme Court against the Trust Company of the Republic to recover $300,000 and interest for alleged services in obtaining subscriptions among his friends in France for securities of the United States Shipbuilding Company. He swore to his complaint before the United States consulgeneral in Paris on July 7. He asserts that ie was engaged from May 1, 1902, to Jan.

Application was made to Justice Freedman to-day by the counsel of the trust company for an order to compel the baron to make his complaint more specific and to state whether the promise to give him $300,-000 was made orally or in writing, and who it was made the promise. Justice Freedman denied the application, but gave the company leave to apply for a bill of partic-

NO REPORT RECEIVED.

Washington and Ottawa Without Advices on the Petrel Episode.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 .- No dispatches have been received during the day by the State Department concerning the firing upon the fishing vessel by a Canadian revenue cutter in Lake Erie. Officers of the department upon reading the press dispatches of the occurrence searched for precedents in such cases and found none. The fact that no telegraphic advices have been received leads to the belief in the department that the case is not of such serious consequences as to make it an international complication.

OTTAWA, Canada, Aug. 13 .- The minister of marine and fisheries is without advice of the attack yesterday on an American fishing steamer by a Canadian revenue cutter. Captain Dunn, of the Petrel, has been asked by the minister to report at once on the matter.

Lower and lower he sinks, that great gold tyrant beneath whose gaze we have qualled all day. The puckers round our eyes, those wrinkles born of glare, gradually disappear as the shadows grow longer and we can stare the dying sun in the face without blinking. The brazen day is nearly over, and before the earth is consumed by night in its velvety blackness we are about to snatch an hour's sport in the delicious cool of the tropical twilight. Far away the low lying margin of the palm-fringed mainland glows the rugged mountain ranges are here bathed in flaming gold and there are thrown into shadows of the deepest

Between us and the land is the great gray lagoon. Calm and undisturbed it lies, simmering forever in uncomplaining silence. Scattered over its steely surface the many reedy islets, the treacherous banks of which render them secure from the desecrating foot of man, but to the wild fowl of the night they offer both food and sanctuary. On either side, far into the hazy distance, stretches the dreary bank of undulating sand that separates the patient placid waters from the chaffing, restless sea. From day to day, from year to year, the great green breakers pound their mournful music on the everlasting stretch of beach. In long, heaving lines they roll in, crumbling into creamy surf as they pass the reef, and with a hollow crash spring into glistening spray upon the dazzling sand by day. At night, when the sense of sight is at a discount, that of sound seems accentuated, and a thundering roar fills the ears and tells its terrible tales of the vast blue In-

MURIEL DOWIE WEDS.

Divorced Wife of Henry Norman Now Mrs. Fitzgerald.

LONDON, Aug. 13.-Edward Arthur Fitzgerald, a lieutenant of the Fifth Dragoon Guards, to-day married Muriel Dowie, the divorced wife of Henry Norman, the author and traveler, who is now a member of Parliament from South Wolverhampton. The marriage occurred before a registrar at Hampstead. Lieutenant Fitzgerald was born in Connecticut, being the son of a British subject, who married the daughter of Eli White, of New York. He gained a reputation by climbing the "Alps from end pass" in the New Zealand Alps. In 1892 he married a daughter of Baron De Rothercob. She died the following year. He joined the Imperial Yeomanry in 1900. Muriel Dowie was also an extensive travconcerning her experience.

A TINY BRITISH COLONY.

Seventeen Households on the Island of Tristan d'Acunha.

A Blue Book just issued in London, containing "further correspondence relating to the Island of Tristan l'Acunha," gives some information of interest about the condition of this diminutive colony. In January Tristan d'Acunha was visited by H. M. S Thrush, and Lieutenant Watts-Jones and Surgeon Lobb of the vessel drew up a report on the island, which was forwarded by the Admiralty to the Colonial Office, to be laid before the secretary of state on March 26. The population, says the report, now consists of seventy-six persons, divided into seventeen families or households. All but four of the inhabitants were born in the who are described as being probably the best educated persons there. There have been no marriages in the island for three years. The islanders, though sunburned, are described as being practically "white." The men are hardy, but not of fine physique; "the women are decidedly finer specimens than the men; their features are regular, pleasing and of somewhat Semitic type. The children are clean, fat, healthy and well cared for, and surprisingly well clad." There is no definite sign of mental or physical deterioration arising specifically from the system of intermarriage. The people generally, say the officers, were very anxious about the education of their children, and the difficulties attending this seem largely responsible for the views they exa brief making the appointment was issued | mutton and poultry produce, and of these beyond the inhabitants are entirely dependent on passing ships. She brought back forty-five packages, addressed to various people in Cape Colony, as the islanders said that unless they could send some of their things to their relations in the colony they would get no clothing." The schooner trade which used to be regularly carried on with the island has come to an end. It is pointed out that the island might, in the future, have a value, should a large carrying trade be established between South America and the Cape, as an intermediate station for wireless telegraphy; but this and the occasional assistance given to shipwrecked people seem the only imaginable reasons for occupying it. The great majority of the people say they would like to quit the island if they could realize or receive compensation for leaving their stock behind them. Admiral Moore, in his dispatch to the Admiralty, covering the report of the Thrush, says that "the possibility of removal having been presented to the islanders. submit it is very desirable a decision in the matter should be arrived at, and communicated to them at the first possible opportunity, in order that they may remain no longer than is necessary in any doubt as to their future.' COSTLY WALLPAPER.

Some Varieties Come Much Higher Than Fine Silk.

It may come as a surprise to those householders who are accustomed to pay a few which cost considerably more than the

"Here," said a wallpaper manufacturer the other day, "are examples of what we call tapestry papers. They are copied ex-actly from the finest Smyrna and Turkish rugs, the colors and designs being reproduced, as you can see for yourself, with startling fidelity. We have men ransacking all Europe, copying paintings and mural decorations of past centuries. Here is the rather a curious way. "One of our customers happened to be in Paris last summer, and being fond of inspecting old mansions, one day entered a tumble-down chateau which formerly be-longed to a dead and long-forgotten mar-quise. The rooms were absolutely rotting away, but in the salon the wallpaper still hung, though in ribbous. The pattern was so exquisite in design, and the coloring vivid still in many places, so harmonious, that he collected as many portions as he could and sent them to us with a request to reproduce as perfectly as possible.

"We succeeded beyond his best hopes and the actual paper is now hanging on the walls of a West End mausion. We only manufactured sufficient to cover the ball-finest grained mahogany, green ash, deli-cately veined maple, and, in fact, all those woods which are used in paneling. When polished it is impossible to tell the differ-ence, and I defy any one to distinguish our paper from wood by merely looking at it. I have been deceived myself many a time. "Then we have papers resembling mo-saics and Sienna marble, as well as the famous embossed Cordova leathers. These latter are very expensive, being retailed at 36s a yard. It is, however, practically indestructible, and can be washed and scoured like ordinary woodwork. An imitation of these leathers is also made which, of course, costs considerably less, being sold at about 30s a roll of eight yards, but even this price is beyond the purses of any but the really wealthy.

"We pay large sums for special designs, and many of our artists earn incomes which the most hard-working R. A.'s would not despise. There seems to be at present a run on delicate tints and floral designs. A particularly effective paper is one showing lattices of climbing roses blending into faintly tinted sky lines. It has the texture of the finest silk and costs as much. Another design which is very popular just now we imported from Holland-ships in full sail, with glimpses of trees and the red of Dutch roofs in the distance. This, in the finest materials, we can retail at 5s a yard. "Many of our walipapers are designed especially for a customer, and when such is the case the price, of course, runs high. A couple of years ago a gentleman came in Put-in Bay to Detroit, Cleveland, Niagara and chose a very beautiful design, and then Falls. Mackinac island and other places. informed us that he desired the paper to be copied directly on to the wall of his drawing room in oils. Of course, we furnished his order, but it cost him a small fortune, Six months later he came and told us he was tired to death of the design, and ordered us to paint it out, which we did, substituting a paper this time for the paint. We have several customers on our books who have the papers on their walls changed every two months. They get tired of on Chronicle; C. L. Jeffries, wife and looking at the same pattern day after day, and as they have plenty of money we don't trouble ourselves trying to argue them out of their eccentric notions. In one house in chester Herald; Will Beeson, Winchester | Park Lane our bill for wall papers ran to over £700 for the year, and this is by no means an isolated case. Yet, it is a fairly paying business, but one must employ only the best artists to get the best results, and that, of course, brings the profits down but, on the whole, we are very well satis-

Letter to Mr. A. Gillett, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sir: You understand grinding wheat, buckwheat, rye, oats and corn. We understand grinding paint-things. The two sorts Indianapolis Men Investors in the of grinding are not much alike. Very likely oats and wheat behave very differently in the mill, and you manage them differently-we know very little about your work; don't need to; we'd rather depend on you. But we paint your house and mill, and > mix their paint with a stick in a tub. We use lead and zinc. And our zinc is as tough as your oats. Tub mixers imagine they mix it. They don't; they can't. Takes grinding to mix lead and zinc. They are both white. Tub-mixers don't know it; but tub-mixed lead and zinc is a streak of one alongside of a streak of the out-buildings; perhaps you'd be glad to know about grinding paint; for some people

We grind as you grind; and our paint is lead and zinc ground together, mixed intimately: it is neither lead nor zinc, but lead and zinc: the lead is lost, and the zinc is lost; each lost in the other; both lost in the mixture. Lead chalks and zinc peels; lead and zinc ground together hang on and protect each other. We take care of your mill outside; you take care of it inside
